The Treasurers of the several Churches of the Saluda Baptist Association are requested to forward to Maj. E. B. This request only applies to receipts for money not paid through the Executive Board.

On the 1st of May an excursion train will be run from Newberry and other points on the C. & G. R. R. to Greenville and return, for the special accommodation of school children. Arrangements have been made whereby persons from Anderson can go on the regular morning passenger train to Belton, where they will join the excursionists. An extra train will bring the passengers home from Belton in the evening. Fare for the round trip from Anderson to Greenville 75 cents.

While on our way to New Orleans, we stopped over a day in Atlanta, making our headquarters, while there, at the National Hotel, which is conducted by Col. V. T. Sloan and son. Col. Sloan is well known in Anderson, where he has many friends. The National has recently been thoroughly renovated, and now ranks as one of the best hotels in Georgia. The rooms are neat and clean and elegantly furnished, and the fare, which is the best in the market, is very low. It is prepared in the very best manner. The rates are two dollars a day, and you pay for what you eat and not for stay. Mr. E. P. Sloan, who is also well known in our midst, is one of the clerks in the hotel. Whenever any of our people visit Atlanta, we advise them to stop at the National. Col. Sloan, being a native Carolinian, has a warm place in his heart for South Carolinians, and takes special delight in ministering to their comforts and pleasures.

THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Our Visit to the "Great City"—Some Things We Saw There.

Whenever a newspaper scribbles a place of note, the readers of the journal he represents naturally expect him to give an account of his trip, and as we have just returned from a visit to the Exposition at New Orleans the INTELLIGENCER readers will doubtless expect us to perform this duty. Under ordinary circumstances the task would be comparatively an easy one, but in this instance it is quite difficult, for there was so much to be seen that we know not where to begin our account. It would be impossible to give anything like a full description of the sights in New Orleans. Our time and space are both too limited, therefore we will write only of those things which were most impressed upon our memory, trusting that the same will be of interest to our readers.

THE EXPOSITION buildings and grounds invariably strike the visitor as being more than he had anticipated. The buildings cover an area of about eighty-five acres, the Main Building alone covering thirty-three acres. The grounds are beautifully laid out in walks and drives, with several small lakes dotted here and there. Under the large shade trees comfortable seats are arranged, where a person can sit for hours and enjoy the gentle Gulf breeze, at the same time almost staring his eyes out of socket in viewing the scene presented. At convenient places throughout the grounds are also to be found restaurants, lunch houses, soda water and lemonade stands, etc., where the inner man may be refreshed as often as desired.

THE MAIN BUILDING seems to be the centre of attraction. Here are located all the foreign exhibits, the displays of the various manufacturing industries of the world, merchants' displays, etc. At the corner of almost every aisle, vendors representing nearly every nationality on the globe are offering their wares for sale at unreasonable prices. These vendors are doing a lively business. Over the various stands are Holy Land, "From India," "From China," etc. Of course, nearly every visitor purchases something to take home with him, so he can say he has something that was made in Jerusalem, India or some other distant country. We have our doubts whether one-third of the articles offered for sale ever crossed the ocean. The major part of the visitors think so, however, and purchase the wares eagerly, paying three times the worth of them. The Mexican exhibit in this building is very large and interesting, as is also the Chinese and Japanese exhibits. A person could spend a week or two very profitably in inspecting the exhibits of these three countries, which are further advanced in the arts and sciences than the average inhabitant of our country would suppose. With the exception of the United States exhibit, the Mexican display is generally considered to be the best on the grounds.

In this building also can be seen almost every machine known to man at work. In the centre of the building is Music Hall, where one of the largest organs that has ever been built stands, and on which an adept musician performs at a certain hour daily. Facing this organ are arranged several thousand chairs, which are crowded every day between 3 and 4 o'clock to listen to the excellent music rendered by the Mexican Band, which is composed of about one hundred members, all of whom are thorough musicians. We were informed that this Band was sent to the Exposition at the expense of the Mexican Government, and that these daily concerts cost the Exposition management nothing. It is in Music Hall where all the speeches are delivered on occasion, as when the various States celebrate their day. Wednesday, 15th inst., was the Mexican Veterans' Day. Several hundred of the old veterans were present, among them Beauregard and Jeff. Davis. We got a view of the former, but found no one that could point out the latter to us.

The numerous aisles throughout the building are wide, and at no place are you liable to be crowded. Around the building is a large gallery, which affords a fine promenade and a good view of the immense ground floor. It would take a month or two to see every article exhibited in this building.

THE GOVERNMENT BUILDING was, to us, the most interesting of any on the grounds. A description of the many thousands of articles exhibited in this building alone would fill volumes. Every State and Territory in the Union, we believe, has a display here. The United States Government occupies the centre with its display. All the appliances used in the Hospital service, the various weapons, etc., used in both the Navy and Army, models of the wonderful machines (showing the improvements that have been made on each), which have been invented and patented in this country, may be seen here, together with thousands of other interesting things. We found a relic of the Greely Arctic Expedition very interesting. The entire company outfit is on exhibition. Dumplings are dressed up in the clothing worn by the men, and the old tent they used is erected. The small boats from the Thetis and Bear, which first reached the sufferers, are also on exhibition. These curiosities, perhaps, attract as much attention as anything in the building.

Around the Government display the various State and Territory exhibits are situated, with large signs bearing the name of the State over each space. The visitor has no trouble in viewing each State's exhibit separately, though it will take a long time to do so. Each State and Territory has its separate office and headquarters, where visitors are always welcome, and where you will find polite and accommodating gentlemen always on hand to answer any question or give you any information regarding their respective States. Back in which visitors are requested to register their names. The first thing we did upon entering this building was to register in the South Carolina department, which is in charge at present of Maj. L. A. Ransom, Commissioner Butler's chief clerk. We feel proud of South Carolina's display, which is second to none. It would take several columns to do justice to our exhibit. The beautiful pagoda of phosphate rock, and other elegant built of granite, green and other artificial products together with the tasteful arrangement of the preserved fruits, vegetables, etc., attracts the admiration of every one. All the manufacturing industries of the State are represented, and specimens of our timber, ore, etc., are shown. The State's exhibit covers a space of over 10,000 square feet. Three money appropriated by our Legislature for this display is being well used, and will reflect credit on South Carolina.

In various States had thousands of interesting novelties displayed that we would like to mention, but we will have to pass on, calling attention to only a few things that most excited our curiosity. In the Virginia exhibit we saw the Natural Bridge, which is said by those who have seen the real bridge to be a facsimile of it. In the exhibit of the State is shown a chair that was used by George Washington.

In the California department a section of the big tree attracts the attention of every passer-by. The tree was 308 feet high, and its bark 2 feet thick. Its estimated age is 5700 years. On the stump, five feet from the ground, thirty-two persons danced a quadrille. The diameter of the section exhibited is 18 feet, and the section was taken from the tree 96 feet from the base. Alabama exhibits a solid lump of coal, the weight of which is 113 tons. In the Minnesota exhibit the beautiful Minnesota Falls are seen. It is a beautiful sight to stand in front of them and see the falling water. We saw in the Dakota exhibit the stuffed skin of a small white spotted pony, which, we were informed, was ridden by Sitting Bull when Gun. Custer was killed. In the gallery above this exhibit the stuffed skin of the great Mammoth, an extinct species of the Elephant, is seen. Its length is 25 feet, and its height 16 feet. This monster elephant, it is said, was found frozen in the ice in the Lena River, Siberia, in the year 1779. In the Mississippi department one of the most novel and cute things we saw was the "Burial of Jack-robin." At the head of the coffin, stands the bereaved widow Jenny Wren, with a black crepe bonnet, a veil and white strings tied under her chin. She is surrounded by the chief mourners and all the relatives and friends of the deceased. The little fly is perched on a tree near by. All the birds mentioned in the story, which every one has often heard, no doubt, in childhood, are to be seen. The birds look very lifelike, and were prepared by a young lady of Natchez, Miss. She is evidently a skillful taxidermist.

THE HORTICULTURAL BALL.

is situated on a slight elevation in the southern part of the grounds. Here every variety of fruits, flowers and plants may be seen, and those who delight in viewing such can spend several hours very profitably and with much interest. The coconut, the banana, the lemon and the orange trees may all be seen with the fruit on them.

One of the gardens, or labyrinths as it is called, is laid out in narrow walks, on either side of which is a hedge of evergreens about five feet high. A person may start to walk through it, and unless he watches very closely, before he knows it he is hemmed in, and it is with difficulty that he can get out. The garden is indeed very ingeniously arranged, though we succeeded, after several attempts, in going through it.

From West End we crossed Lake Pontchartrain in a boat to the Old Spanish Fort. Here we found about the same attractions as at West End. A large restaurant stands upon the site of the old Fort. The old cannons used to defend the city are still there. The cemeteries are of special interest to strangers. The ground being so full of water, it is impossible to enter the dead under the soil, and hence the bodies are placed in tombs on top of the ground. Besides the many magnificent monuments erected in memory of the heroes of the Confederacy, the most beautiful and costly tombs can be seen. Many of the tombs have the appearance of a large oval, the coffins being placed in them, one on top of the other, and the opening then closed with slabs of brick.

The United States Mint is another place worth visiting. Nothing but silver dollars are coined here, and about 40,000 are turned out daily. The officials are very polite, and take great pleasure in showing visitors through the building. The Custom House, too, is an interesting place to visit. It is built of granite and marble, and covers a whole square. In the main hall there are fourteen massive carved marble pillars, supporting the roof above them. These, we were informed, cost $8000 each.

Among other leading points of interest in New Orleans are the sugar sheds, the levee, the various squares or parks containing the statues of Levee, Jackson and other noted statesmen.

New Orleans is perhaps ahead of New York in many respects. A large proportion of the inhabitants are of foreign extraction, and Sunday is observed more as a day of amusement than a religious day, though the churches are always well attended. With the exception of the wholesale houses, nearly all the stores are open, and work goes on Sunday as during any other day. Sunday is a great day for theatres, horse racing, etc. On Sunday afternoon we witnessed a large parade of a local organization. There are hundreds of gambling houses in full blast night and day.

The inhabitants of the city are hospitable and sociable, and take great pleasure in imparting information to strangers. During our stay there we boarded with Mr. A. C. Hussey, at 157 Callopie street, where we were treated more like a guest than a boarder. Quite a number of the Anderson visitors have made this their headquarters, and all of them will join us in saying that it is a most pleasant place to stop at.

We made our journey to New Orleans from Atlanta by the way of Montgomery and Mobile, over the Atlantic & New Orleans Short Line, which is the quickest and most pleasant route from Atlanta. The scenery along the route, especially from Mobile to New Orleans, is grand. The road runs along the Gulf coast, through marshes and over lakes and rivers. We advise all travellers to take this route when going to the Exposition or any portion of the Southwest. Capt. F. M. Claiborne is the Passenger Agent of this line in Atlanta. He has an elegantly furnished office in the new Kimball House, where travellers can get any desired information in regard to rates, connections, etc., to the West. Now, in conclusion, we urge every one who can possibly do so to visit the Exposition. It is a grand, magnificent show, and this generation will perhaps never have another opportunity of witnessing its equal.

A Gala Week in Charleston. The Mutual Aid Association, No. 1, one of the most powerful benevolent organizations in the United States, will give a grand Inter-State Picnic on Wednesday, May 13th. At this entertainment, Capt. F. D. Dawson, Editor of the News and Courier, will make an address of welcome. Gov. Thompson, Lieut. Gov. Shepperd, Senators Hampton and Butler, and other distinguished gentlemen, and the editors of every paper in this State and leading cities from adjacent States have been invited, and are expected to attend. The Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., of the State of South Carolina, and the Sportman's Association of the Carolinas meet the same week, on May 13th, 14th and 15th. The Charleston Driving Park Association, of which Capt. F. W. Waggoner is President, propose to have on their splendid course two days of fine racing. The railroads should furnish excursion rates at the lowest possible figure, so that all can attend at this delightful season. Our friends in Charleston bid us a whole-souled welcome.

Your Chance to Visit the Exposition. Mr. Editor: Allow me to state through your columns that I have at last succeeded in securing quite a cheap rate to New Orleans. The old reliable Atlanta & West Point Railroad are always abreast of the times, and through them, and the Gen. Passenger Agent of the Richmond & Danville Road, the fare has been reduced so that all of our people can have a chance to visit the Exposition before it closes. I have fixed on Tuesday, the 5th day of May, to leave Anderson, and, if the number of passengers is secured, will run a through car to New Orleans without change. The rate will be fixed only for that day, and I respectfully ask all persons who desire to visit the Exposition of this cheap rate to inform me of the fact on or before Saturday, the second day of May. Don't put it off until the last day to decide, as you may be disappointed, for unless the requisite number is raised the car will not be ordered. The fare for round trip will be $14.35 good for 10 days. Remember that the A. & W. P. Roads offer you the quickest trip, and the finest scenery any other route to the Exposition. The magnificent view of the Gulf coast en route is worth the price of the ticket. So don't be bashful, but send in your names at once, and take one of the most delightful trips that will probably ever be offered you again in a lifetime. L. F. SMITH, Agent A. & W. P. R. R.
